GREEN TEA FIELDS OF JEJU

Rolling Green Waves

In Jeju's April, amidst the tea fields,
Wherever the spring rain has visited,
Tender tea leaves stir to life.

As sunlight dances along the furrows,
The entire hillside ripples in green.

Amidst the fresh vitality of this season,
We, too, grow like the new leaves.

JDC MAGAZINE

APRIL 2026

Dream of Jeju, the official digital magazine of the Jeju Free International City Development Center (JDC), returns this April with the theme “A New Tomorrow Born of Verdant Freshness.” This issue is packed with vibrant updates, including the inauguration of Song Seok-eon as the 10th President of JDC.

We are also proud to announce that the film My Name Is, which won the screenplay competition co-hosted by JDC and the Jeju 4.3 Peace Foundation, has been officially invited to the Berlin International Film Festival. Other highlights include Korea-Vietnam youth exchanges and a specialized school program helping immigrants integrate into our community. JDC is dedicated to building an international city where growth and coexistence thrive in harmony with the unique values of Jeju. As a public enterprise under the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport, we continue to enhance our core projects in tourism, education, healthcare, and advanced technology while identifying new opportunities for Jeju's sustainable future.

A New Chapter for JDC: Constant Renewal

Inauguration of Song Seok-eon as the 10th President of JDC

JDC began a new chapter on March 19, 2026, welcoming Song Seok-eon, former president of Jeju National University, as its 10th President. Drawing inspiration from the philosophy of il-sin-u-il-sin (continuous daily renewal), Chairperson Song outlined three strategic directions for the organization. Under his leadership, JDC will return to its founding mission and work more closely with the residents of Jeju to foster meaningful growth.

Prioritizing Normalization for Sustainable Growth

President Song emphasized that resolving pending issues is his top priority. He noted that just as an illness prevents even the best-dressed person from functioning at their best, JDC must first address its internal challenges to move forward. He identified the Resort Residential Complex and Jeju Healthcare Town as critical projects that require immediate resolution. To this end, he announced plans to establish a dedicated task force, settle outstanding legal matters promptly, and finalize development plans for repurchased land. Regarding Jeju Healthcare Town, he committed to developing a recovery plan based on an objective analysis of previous delays. He also stressed the importance of maintaining trust through transparent communication and consultation with private investors.

Additionally, he proposed strengthening JDC's revenue base by enhancing the competitiveness of its duty-free business. This includes diversifying product offerings, attracting new brands, and upgrading logistics systems to better align with evolving consumer trends.

Restoring Public Trust and Strengthening Partnerships

Restoring trust among the residents of Jeju is another urgent priority. President Song noted that while JDC has launched numerous initiatives for Jeju's growth, many residents have yet to experience tangible results. To address this, he plans to expand public participation and strengthen communication channels. A new task force will also be created to define JDC's long-term strategic vision.

President Song also pledged to deepen cooperation with both the Jeju Provincial Government and the central government.

JDC will play an active role in revising the Third Jeju Free International City Comprehensive Plan and will reinforce regular consultative meetings with the provincial government. It will also pursue the eighth phase of institutional improvements under the Jeju Special Act to build a closer partnership between the central government, Jeju Province, and JDC. President Song emphasized a culture of empathy and public service, calling for labor-management relations based on harmony and shared prosperity. He urged all employees to unite under the spirit of il-sin-u-il-sin (continuous daily renewal) to achieve meaningful progress. Ultimately, JDC aims to fulfill its mission of developing Jeju as a free international city by building trust through sincere engagement with the community. This inauguration marks a bold step forward in JDC's commitment to sustainable development and improving the quality of life for all Jeju residents. 🌊

My Name, a feature film co-sponsored by the Jeju 4.3 Peace Foundation and JDC, has been officially invited to the Forum section of the 76th Berlin International Film Festival. This selection brings the tragic history of the Jeju 4.3 Incident to the world stage.

World Premiere at Cinéma Paris, Berlin

From Screenplay Competition to Berlin

The journey of the film began in 2020 when My Name won the screenplay competition co-hosted by the Jeju 4.3 Peace Foundation and JDC. Since that initial stage, JDC has been a steadfast partner, providing essential support throughout the film’s development and production. By nurturing the project from its very inception, JDC served as a vital pillar in bringing this story to life.

As an official selection for the Forum section of the 76th Berlin International Film Festival, My Name held its successful world premiere on February 13 at Cinema Paris, located on Berlin’s Kurfürstendamm. The Forum section is renowned for showcasing films with a bold and original artistic vision. Festival organizers praised the work as a film that “sensitively illuminates the multi-generational trauma of a tragic history, highlighting the profound importance of breaking a long-held silence.”

A History Without a Name, a Story of Finding One

My Name follows the journey of Yeong-ok (played by Shin Woo-bin), a high school junior who resents his old-fashioned name, and his mother Jeong-sun (played by Yeom Hye-ran), who carries the deep-seated scars of the Jeju 4.3 Incident. As they seek to reclaim lost memories tied to a name, they begin a process of healing from long-held trauma. This story of a mother and son, bound by a single name, touches upon the deepest wounds of Jeju's modern history.

Director Chung Ji-young has spent his career confronting significant social issues in Korea through acclaimed films such as Unbowed, Black Money, and The Boys. Receiving his first-ever invitation to Berlin in his 44th year as a filmmaker, he shared his reflections in a local interview: “The Jeju 4.3 Incident still lacks an official name. My hope is that it will one day be known by a name that reflects the spirit of reconciliation and the overcoming of tragedy.”

A Film Brought to Life by the People of Jeju

My Name was not the product of a few sponsors alone.

A crowdfunding campaign raised 404.27 million won, nearly ten times its original goal, setting an all-time record for crowdfunding in Korean narrative cinema. This achievement signifies how the collective memory of Jeju was brought to the silver screen through the sheer strength of its community.

Immediately following the Berlin premiere, a profound, lingering silence filled the theater. As the final credits, featuring the names of countless supporters, concluded, they were met with a wave of heartfelt applause. All screenings at the festival were reported to have sold out, reflecting the intense local interest.

In that moment, as the sorrow of Jeju resonated with global audiences, JDC's long-standing support for this project finally came to fruition. My Name is scheduled for nationwide release in April 2026, coinciding with the 78th anniversary of the Jeju 4.3 Incident. 🍁

Interview with Director
Chung Ji-young

With its official invitation to the Berlin International Film Festival, My Name has brought the story of the Jeju 4.3 Incident to the global stage. Director Chung Ji-young captures the historical wounds hidden within Jeju's natural beauty, delivering a powerful message of healing, reconciliation, and peace. We sat down with Director Chung, who masterfully rendered Jeju's mournful landscapes and barley fields on screen, to discuss the significance of the film and the history that inspired it.

Please introduce yourself.

I'm Chung Ji-young, and I direct films. This latest project began when I came across a screenplay that won a competition hosted by the Jeju 4.3 Peace Foundation. With the generous support of JDC, I was able to bring that story to the screen.

What specific elements of the Jeju 4.3 Incident were you most determined to capture in this film?

When I first read the screenplay, I was struck by a single, powerful motif: the story of a woman who has lost her name and her journey to reclaim her true identity. Beyond the historical suffering and ideological conflicts, I saw a protagonist who is simultaneously a perpetrator and a victim, wandering in search of her essence.

This grueling process felt like a mirror to the bloody reality of the Jeju 4.3 Incident itself, which still drifts without an official name and has yet to achieve its proper designation.

I have always found Jeju breathtaking, even before we started filming. However, I believe many people visit without realizing that the agony of 4.3 is woven into that very landscape. Once you recognize that pain, you realize that Jeju's beauty is actually quite poignant. I took great care to capture that haunting, sorrowful atmosphere on screen.

How does it feel to have your work invited to a stage as prestigious as the Berlin International Film Festival?

I was very heartened by the warm reception from both the audiences and the critics at the festival.

To be honest, I sometimes feel that such high praise is more than I deserve. I am simply grateful that so many people connected with the film's message so deeply and responded to it so generously.

Of all the scenes in My Name, is there one that holds a special place in your heart?

Without a doubt, it is the barley field scene, which serves as both the highlight and the climax of the film. We poured an incredible amount of effort into that particular sequence, and it was quite a challenge to shoot. Despite the difficulties, it remains the scene I feel most attached to.

정지영 감독 인터뷰

Interview with Director Chung Ji-young

What kind of impact do you hope this film leaves on its audience?

This film was created entirely independent of commercial capital, brought to life through the collective contributions of over 9,000 grassroots donors. In that sense, it carries the pure soul of independent cinema, free from any outside interference. At the same time, I intentionally crafted this as a mainstream film that speaks to the broadest possible audience. The tragedy of the Jeju 4.3 Incident is not something that should be mourned only by a few intellectuals or independent film enthusiasts. It is only when the public watches, discusses, and connects with this story through the accessible language of popular cinema that the history of 4.3 can truly resonate and find its place in our collective memory. 🍂

Welcoming Jeju's Spring One Step at a Time

Jeju Eomeong Running Crew

In the early morning light of the Jeju Global Education City, a group of mothers gathers to run through the island's crisp, fresh air. Known as the Jeju Eomeong Running Crew, these women have found a new rhythm in their daily lives. While starting such a journey alone might have been daunting, running side by side has given them the joy and endurance to keep going much longer than they ever imagined.

When Mothers Run, a Community Is Born

“Eomeong” is the Jeju dialect word for mother. Composed of parents from international schools in the JDC Global Education City, the Jeju Eomeong Running Crew carries the stories of Jeju and its mothers in its very name.

The crew began modestly with Chairperson Lee Im-a running on her own. Over time, others joined her by chance. Realizing that many parents shared a reluctance to run alone, she posted a recruitment notice on a parent forum, which led to the official formation of the group. Since its launch in 2022, the crew has grown into a community of about 50 members. They run together every Friday at 9:30 AM near the Global Education City. The only requirement is being a mother. There are no other conditions or membership fees.

Changes Made Possible Together

Many mothers started running for the first time after joining the Jeju Eomeong Running Crew. One member recalls being so unaccustomed to the sport that she drank a liter of water after running just 50 meters. Through consistent group training, her fitness improved remarkably, and she now participates in 10k races. The crew also completed a group winter hike up Hallasan's Witse Oreum. While the snow-covered climb was challenging, they reached the summit by supporting one another.

The Jeju Eomeong Running Crew also shares the joy of running with the local community. They host regular charity bazaars to raise funds for aspiring young track and field athletes in the province. While their usual runs are reserved for mothers, the crew organizes special family events where children and fathers join in, strengthening family bonds through shared physical activity.

Health and Happiness Found in Jeju

The area surrounding Jeju Global Education City attracts families seeking the island's pristine environment and the high standards of its international schools. Many mothers who moved to Jeju alone with their children initially faced concerns about adjusting to a new life. The Jeju Eomeong Running Crew has served as a vital support system, helping to ease these worries. A positive ripple effect of the group is that as mothers improve their fitness, their children also grow healthier in both body and mind. More than just a fitness club, the Jeju Eomeong Running Crew has become a cornerstone of the international school community, integrating health, social contribution, and family life. 🍊

Jeju Youth Expand Their Horizons in Vietnam

JDC Community Support Program : Korea-Vietnam Hondi Gallak

Supported by the JDC Community Support Program and operated by the nonprofit organization Happy Tree, the Korea-Vietnam Hondi Gallak program is gaining recognition as a platform for global growth. Hondi Gallak is a Jeju dialect expression meaning “to go together with joy.” Twenty Jeju youth recently traveled to Hanoi and Haiphong to volunteer and explore career paths alongside local peers. Through these challenges in an unfamiliar land, they have returned home ready to take their place on the world stage.

JDC Supports Youth-Led Global Competency

In its 2025 community support open call, JDC selected the Jeju Youth Global Competency Program: Korea-Vietnam Hondi Gallak, operated by the nonprofit organization Happy Tree, and provided KRW 45 million in funding. The name “Hondi Gallak” is a Jeju dialect expression meaning “to enjoy together,” symbolizing the shared growth of Korean and Vietnamese youth.

This initiative is an extension of Happy Tree’s youth cultural exchange program that has been active since 2019. Following a high satisfaction score of 93.3 in 2024, the program returned in 2025 with an even more diverse curriculum thanks to JDC’s continued backing.

The program participants included 20 students from grades 8 to 12 and 5 mentors, all selected through recommendations from schools and youth organizations. By prioritizing youth from disadvantaged backgrounds, the project provided a rare opportunity for those with limited international experience to build courage and global confidence.

From Workshops to Hanoi : A Journey Designed by Youth

During the November 2025 domestic workshop, participants engaged in global citizenship training and designed their own itineraries for Vietnam.

Organized into five teams of four, the students developed volunteer plans and missions tailored to their specific career interests. Following a launch ceremony on December 20, 2025, the group traveled to Hanoi and Haiphong for a seven-day program from January 11 to 17, 2026. Activities included volunteering at Hai Thanh Middle School, where Happy Tree established a small library. The students also teamed up with Hanoi Kids, a local university volunteer club, for a culinary tour and career exploration tasks. For self-directed career exploration, the youth visited KOTO, a vocational training school specializing in the culinary and hospitality industry.

They also attended a lecture on entrepreneurship by Kim Sang-hyeon, the CEO of Bread Factory and a 2019 Forbes 30 Under 30 Asia honoree. Visits to Samsung Electronics SEVT and the Korean Chamber of Commerce and Industry in Vietnam (KOCHAM) allowed them to witness the significant presence of Korean enterprises in the region. The program also focused on sustainable development. At Mekong Quilts, a fair-trade shop supporting disadvantaged women, the students learned about ethical economics. A visit to Hanoi University provided insight into Vietnam's higher education system, while volunteering at a school for students with disabilities offered a firsthand look at the country's social welfare landscape.

Five Teams, Five Shades of Growth

This year's Hondi Gallak program featured five distinct teams: Heo-ssi's Sangim from Namju Middle School, Dream4U from Jeju Seo Middle School, Sohwagi from the Jeju Youth Training Center After-School Academy, Eomblang from the Daejeong Youth Training Center After-School Academy, and Buff Road from the Jeju Temporary Youth Shelter. Young people from all walks of life came together as one to learn and grow during their time in Vietnam.

At the closing ceremony on February 7, 2026, participants presented their results and shared the lasting impact of their seven-day journey. JDC's community support initiative has successfully opened a new window to the world for Jeju's youth. JDC remains committed to serving as a reliable partner, ensuring that young people from Jeju can continue to grow and succeed on the global stage. 🌿

Learning Jeju and Growing Together

After an opening ceremony at Jeju Shinhwa World Water Park, migrants visited the Jeju National Museum and the Haenyeo Museum to experience the island's rich history and culture. Practical sessions such as the “Learning Economics Step by Step” series and legal literacy classes provided tangible support for their financial independence. A Jeju dialect class offered a unique opportunity for participants to truly integrate into the local culture. To promote psychological recovery, the program included picnics at the Hallasan Eco-Forest and foot bath healing sessions to relieve daily stress.

Picnic at Hallasan Eco-Forest

Counseling provided by the Disaster Psychological Recovery Support Center also served as a vital foundation for emotional stability.

The All Together School Jeju Campus also emphasized the importance of giving back to the community. During a “Cake Patisserie” session held before Christmas, participants baked cakes for four local facilities, including child protection centers. They also prepared kimchi and traditional Jeju dishes to share with vulnerable groups. These activities allowed migrants to transition from being recipients of support to becoming active contributors, marking their growth as vital members of the Jeju community.

Over 500 Join the Cultural Celebration

The program reached its peak on November 29 with the All Together School Migrant and Disaster Relief Experience Festival, held at Tamna Cultural Plaza. During this open festival attended by over 500 residents and visitors, migrants took center stage to showcase their traditional

JDC also operated a booth to fulfill its role as a key supporting organization. Through the collaboration of groups such as the Jeju Hana Center, the International Family Culture Center, and the Jeju Migrant Women’s Counseling Center, the event significantly broadened multicultural awareness within the Jeju community.

Closing the 12-Session Journey and Starting Anew

The graduation ceremony held on February 24, 2026, at the Jeju Red Cross Chapter Hall brought the program to a moving conclusion. Participants dressed in caps and gowns shared the joy of the occasion as they received their certificates of completion and bouquets. As Jeju’s newest neighbors continue to put down roots and grow with confidence, JDC remains committed to walking alongside them every step of the way. 🌸

Sponsored by JDC, the spring season of the 31st Jeju International Wind Ensemble Festival will take place over four days from March 19 to 22. The festival expands its reach beyond the Jeju Culture and Arts Center Grand Theater to include venues such as Hamduk High School's Baekpa Music Hall and the Dongnyeo Lifelong School auditorium. This grand celebration of wind music brings together world-class performers, Jeju youth, and local ensembles for a series of concerts resonating throughout the island.

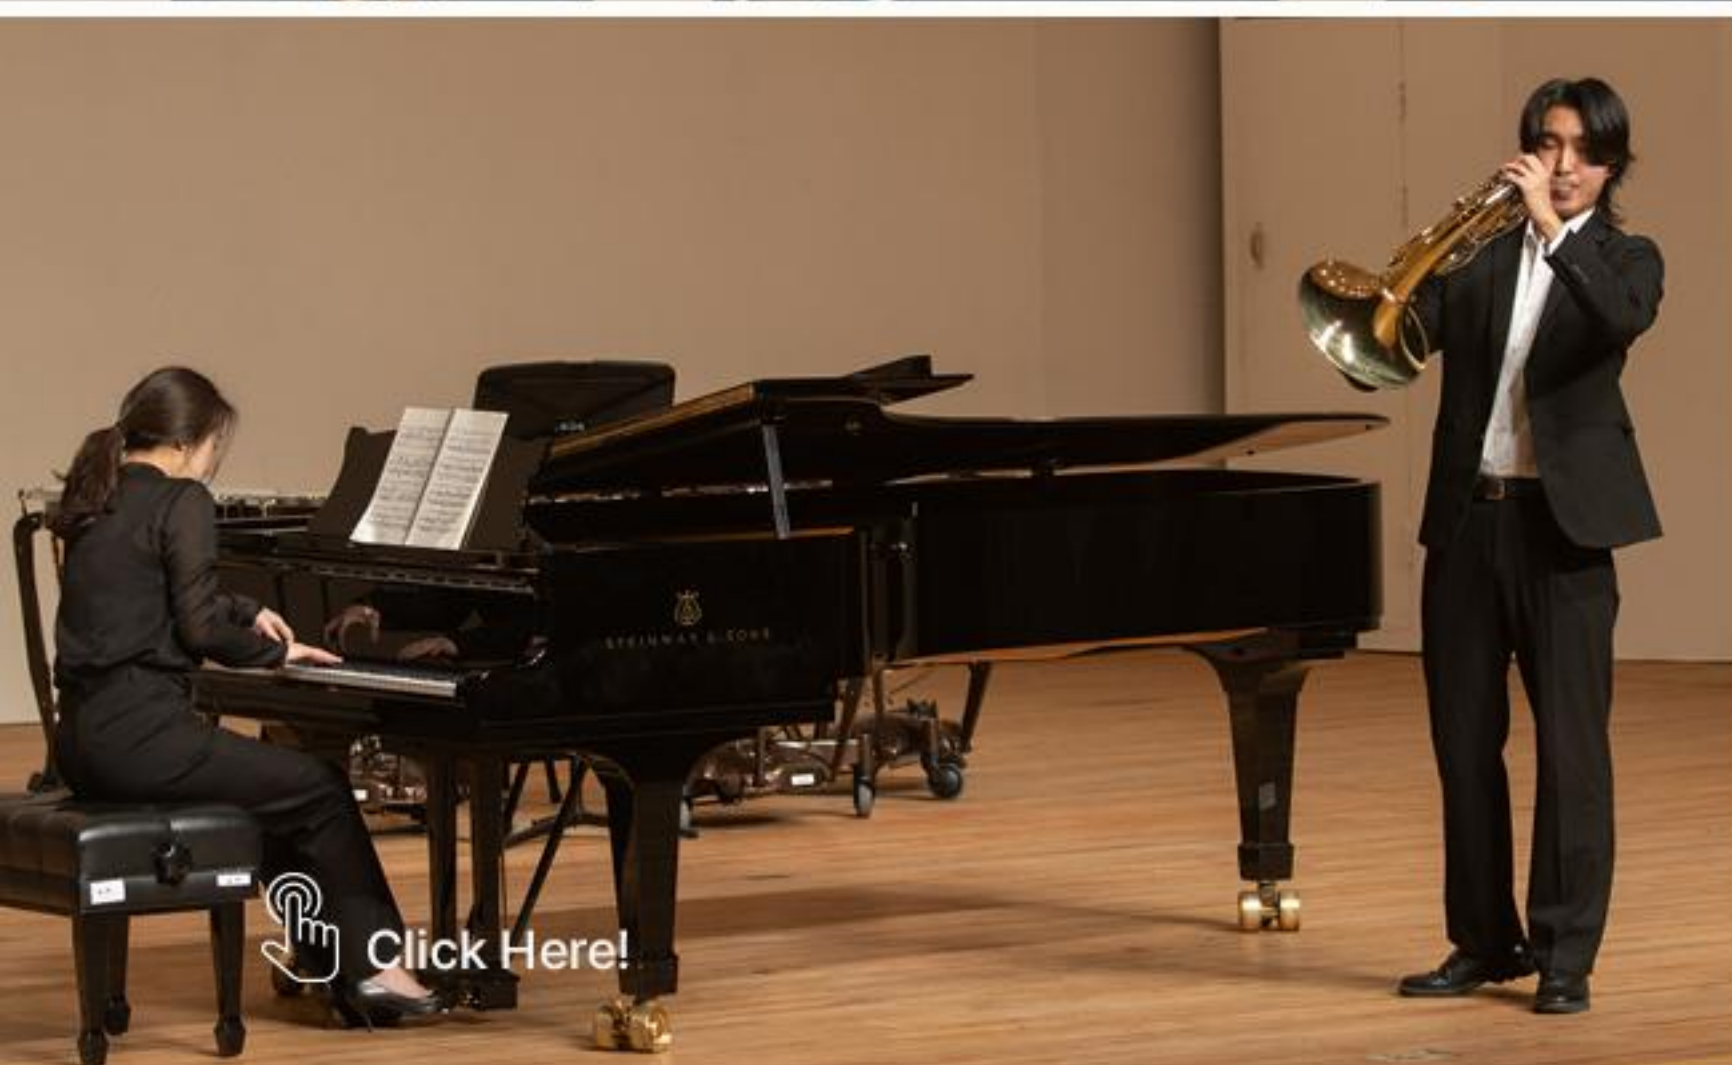

Spanish Brass Echoes the Festival Opening

The festival commenced on the afternoon of March 19 at the Jeju Culture and Arts Center Grand Theater. Following the opening performances by the Gonggitdol Clarinet Ensemble and One Junior Brass, both comprised of local youth, Spain's premier brass quintet, Spanish Brass, and the wind chamber ensemble, The Winds, took the stage. The invitation of Spanish Brass was made possible through a grant from Acción Cultural Española (AC/E). This partnership serves as a significant milestone, opening a new chapter of official cultural exchange in wind music between Jeju and Spain.

This common dilemma of school breaks remains a significant challenge for working parents. To ease the burden of childcare and create an environment where employees can focus on their work with peace of mind, JDC operated a Childcare Sharing Program.

A Time for Shared Care and Learning

The dedicated space for the program was constantly filled with the sound of children's laughter.

Children stayed active with their peers and engaged in various creative activities. Meaningful sessions such as table tennis and handicrafts were made possible through the talent contributions of fellow employees, adding a personal and communal touch to the experience.

Inflatable Play Activities

Working with Peace of Mind

Throughout the program, the office resonated with an energy and warmth seldom seen before. Both participating employees and their children expressed high satisfaction with the initiative.

"Every school break used to be a struggle to find childcare. This time, I could focus on my duties with confidence," shared one employee. A child participant added, "Meeting new friends at my mom's office and doing origami was so much fun!"

This time, filled with parental love and the consideration of colleagues, resulted in improved work focus and a stronger sense of camaraderie among the team.

Jeju Aerospace Museum Marks 12th Anniversary with AI Video Competition

Showcasing Visitor Perspectives through Creative AI Technology

The Jeju Aerospace Museum, operated by JDC, is hosting an AI Promotional Video Competition to celebrate its 12th anniversary. This initiative aims to discover creative promotional content from a visitor's perspective while encouraging public engagement through the use of AI technology.

Under the theme “Stories of the Jeju Aerospace Museum Told Through AI,” participants may choose one of three topics: the museum’s 12-year journey to the present, a personalized museum tour, or a vision for the next 12 years and the future of the museum.

The competition is open to elementary students in grades 4 to 6 and middle and high school students residing in Jeju. Entries must be short-form videos in vertical 9:16 format, between 30 seconds and one minute in length, created using AI tools.

Submissions are accepted from Thursday, March 12, until 6:00 p.m. on Tuesday, March 31. Interested students can download application forms from the official museum blog and submit their work via email at fly.jam2014@gmail.com.

A total of eight winners will be selected across the elementary and secondary divisions. Awards include two Grand Prizes, two Excellence Prizes, and four Encouragement Prizes, featuring a total prize pool of KRW 1 million and the Museum Director’s Award. Winners will be announced on the museum's anniversary, April 24, at 2:00 p.m. via the official website and social media channels. Winning entries will be featured in future promotional materials for the museum.

2026 KAIST Mentorship Program Successfully Concludes Enhancing STEM Understanding and Scientific Competency for International School Students

JEINS, the governing body of Jeju's international schools, has successfully concluded the 2026 KAIST Mentorship Program at Branksome Hall Asia (BHA) in Jeju Global Education City. This initiative was co-developed as a follow-up to a memorandum of understanding signed last November between JENIS and the KAIST Global Leadership Center. The program was designed to deepen the understanding of STEM fields among international school students and strengthen their scientific and technological capabilities. The week-long program at BHA brought KAIST students on board as mentors to spark interest and academic motivation among Jeju's international school students. Hosted by BHA, which provides an International Baccalaureate (IB) integrated education, the intensive STEM program welcomed middle and high school students from grades 6 to 11.

● 2026 Jeju Innovation Growth Center Networking Day: Talk330 Strengthening Cooperative Networks for Over 50 Route330 Tech Startups

On March 25, JDC hosted the 2026 Jeju Innovation Growth Center Networking Day, titled Talk330, at the Elite Building conference room of the JDC headquarters in the Jeju Advanced Science and Technology Park. Following the inaugural event in 2025, this year's Talk330 aimed to further solidify the regional startup ecosystem by fostering stronger ties between tenant companies and partner organizations.

The first session opened with a welcoming address by JDC President Song Seok-eon. This was followed by a presentation from Jang Gi-tae, Director of the KAIST Eco-Friendly Smart Vehicle Research Center, regarding AX industry policies and directions for corporate cooperation. Park Jae-mo, Director of the JDC Industry Promotion Division, also introduced various support programs designed for the Jeju Advanced Science and Technology Park. The second session, Scale-up Insights, featured a detailed growth case study by Nota Inc., a company specializing in AI optimization technology. The presentation, titled From Technology Demonstration to Global Commercialization and IPO, shared the brand's strategic journey. Additionally, Seo Young-woo, CEO of the investment firm Zephyrus Lab, provided practical insights into investment decision criteria. This session also included presentations from Jang Seung-il of ESTsoft on AI technology advancement and Oh Gi-do of CJ OliveNetworks on models for commercialization cooperation. The third session showcased presentations from seven newly selected tenant companies for 2026. This was followed by one-on-one consultations and small-group networking sessions involving partner organizations and firms across the investment, technology, and commercialization sectors. These interactions offered participants tailored, on-site opportunities for practical collaboration and growth.

Lee Gyeong-seon Appointed as New Head of JDC Industry Promotion Division

Commitment to Strengthening Advanced Industries and Normalizing the Healthcare Town Project

JDC has appointed Lee Gyeong-seon, former Director of the Regional Cooperation Bureau at the Wonju Regional Office of Construction and Management under the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport, as the new Head of its Industry Promotion Division. Lee previously served at the Central Land Expropriation Committee and the Jeju Special Self-Governing Province Support Committee under the Office for Government Policy Coordination. She is highly regarded for the expertise and problem-solving capabilities she brings to regional industrial 및 competitiveness and key pending issues, built through years of experience in national land development and Jeju-specific policy support.

“I feel a profound sense of responsibility regarding my new role,” Lee stated. “Grounded in field-centered communication and a commitment to action, I will do my utmost to strengthen the competitiveness of Jeju’s advanced industries and ensure the successful normalization of the Healthcare Town project, among other priorities.”

It was a pleasure to encounter this spring-scented issue of Dream of Jeju. From the cover photo alone, the warm energy of the season was palpable, making for a truly pleasant March edition. It reminded me that Jeju is the true home of spring. I have carefully noted the various attractions featured in this issue and look forward to visiting them on my next trip to the island.

Ha *Jeong

The storytelling regarding future industries is remarkably clear. The Route330 content goes beyond a simple list of companies. It offers a comprehensive view of industry directions, while detailing the roles of tenant companies and partner collaboration structures. The message that Jeju is expanding its identity from a tourism hub into a tech-driven startup ecosystem was very persuasive. The feature on Jedam Daycare Center is highly polished. The flow of pages is natural, covering everything from educational philosophy and award achievements to ESG perspectives and parent engagement systems. The interview with the director was particularly sincere and stood out with clear keywords. The use of photography is strategic. Images of children’s activities, spatial configurations, and corporate branding are not merely decorative. They build trust by proving these programs are actively operational.

Kim *Yun

From the romance of the Movie Truck to the practical realities of daycare, and from in-depth IB education to savvy shopping tips, I found every section fascinating. Although these topics seem unrelated, the careful attention to detail in each area kept me engaged throughout the entire issue.

Setting a New Standard for Childcare in Jeju

JDC Jedam Daycare Center

Less than a year after opening in March 2025, JDC Jedam Daycare Center is already drawing attention across Jeju's childcare sector. The center has received several awards, including a prize as the Jeju Childcare Support Center's Outstanding Childcare Program Competition, a Special Award from the Korea Child Care Promotion Institute's Saemangeum Diversity Program, and an Encouragement Award in the ESG Program category from the Jeju Green Procurement Support Center.

Behind these achievements is a new childcare model created through the combination of Rural Childcare Support Foundation's parent programs, Jeju's natural environment, and JDC's innovative approach.

Three Awards in just One Year

Since opening in March 2025, JDC Jedam Daycare Center has quickly gained recognition and emerged as a new model for childcare in Jeju. The center received an award at the Outstanding Childcare Program Competition hosted by the Jeju Childcare Support Center, earned a Special Award from the Korea Child Care Promotion Institute for the Saemangeum Diversity Program developed in partnership with the Saemangeum Welfare Foundation, and received an Encouragement Award in the ESG Program category from the Jeju Green Procurement Support Center under the theme 'Building a Sustainable Future for Jeju'. The center's work extends beyond awards. It participated in developing training materials and content for the revised Standard Childcare Curriculum through the Korea Institute of Child Care and Education. It also contributed to a research project on strengthening community-based industry-academia cooperation as part of Jeju Halla University's 2025 Junior College Innovation Support Program. In addition, the center plans to present a poster at the ISSSD 2026 conference of the International Society for the Study of Behavioral Development.

Children Who Grow Through Play

Kim Hee-jeong, Director of JDC Jedam Daycare Center

Please introduce yourself.

Hello, I'm Kim Hee-jeong, director of JDC Jedam Daycare Center. Our daycare's name, Jedam, carries a special meaning. It refers to children who resemble Jeju and children who hold Jeju within them. The name reflects our hope that the children will grow up in clear and bright as Jeju's blue sea, as strong and dependable as Hallasan, and as full of life as the Goriwae forest. Since opening in March 2025, I have worked to create an environment where each child can grow alongside Jeju's natural surroundings and truly live up to that name.

What makes Jedam Daycare Center unique?

As a daycare operated by the Parents Childcare Support Foundation, we follow Parents' core educational philosophy of child-centered and play-based learning. At the same time, we incorporate Jeju's unique natural environment into our programs. The Goriwae forest surrounding the center serves as both a playground and a place of learning for our children, and we work with the local community to reflect this environment in our curriculum. Through these experiences, children naturally learn to see Jeju, feel connected to it, love it, and understand that it is something precious worth protecting. We are grateful that these efforts have already been recognized. Even though the center has been open for less than a year, we received an award at the Jeju Childcare Support Center's Outstanding Childcare Program Competition, a Special Award from the Korea Child Care Promotion Institute's Saemangeum Diversity Program, and an Encouragement Award from the Jeju Green Procurement Support Center.

I discovered a new side of childcare in Jeju through this issue. The way its various awards and programs have already taken root is something other regions should certainly emulate. I hope it continues to be a happy place for both children and teachers.

Jang *Ik

It is wonderful to see it establishing itself as a new role model for childcare in Jeju. Having proven its excellence through various awards, I expect it will provide an even better environment for children. I hope this new model continues to have a positive impact on many children. I support JDC's innovation in lighting the way for the future of childcare.

The interview with the director of Jedam Daycare Center was very memorable. As a father myself, the commitment to play-centered education and the experience-based philosophy of expanding a child's world through simple acts like throwing a stone resonated deeply. Seeing how much children can learn through Jeju's diverse nature made me want to send my own child to Jedam.

Hong *Jin

I appreciated the diverse perspectives reflected in the interviews. The director of Jedam Daycare Center stood out the most. Raising a 27-month-old myself, I find that a play-centered curriculum is perfectly suited for Jeju. I believe that play-based learning is far better for children than a focus on competition.

Park *Yeong

With the emergence of IB graduates from both international and public schools, the proven educational achievements have made me see Jeju in a new light. It is no longer just a holiday destination, but a cradle for nurturing global talent.

Jeju's Dream Reaches the World

Jeju English Education City

Jeju English Education City has once again proven its standing as a hub for developing global talent. In 2025, three international schools founded in British, Canadian, and American educational traditions achieved notable results, including the nation's top IB Diploma performance, admissions to leading universities around the world, and outstanding achievements in sports and community service. These accomplishments highlight the city's growing competitiveness as a global education hub.

Branksome Hall Asia graduated its first cohort to complete the full IB program. NLCS Jeju recorded the highest IB Diploma results in Korea, while SPA Jeju expanded its presence in international competitions and global programs. From Jeju English Education City, Korean education continues to reach beyond national borders and connect with the world.

NLCS Jeju No. 1 in Korea for IB and Strong Admissions to Top Global Universities

NLCS Jeju, the first overseas campus of the prestigious North London Collegiate School in the United Kingdom, ranked first in Korea in the 2025 IB Diploma results with an average score of 37 points, demonstrating its strong academic performance. The achievement is particularly notable given that more than 100 students took the examination.

Since producing its first class in 2014, NLCS Jeju has produced 39 students with perfect IB scores. In 2025, one student achieved the maximum score of 45, while eight others scored 44. In the IB CASB examinations, 13 students earned A* grades across all subjects, and more than 75 percent of students achieved grades of A or higher. Five students also received Top in the World awards for individual IB CASB subjects.

Through this issue, I gained a deep understanding of the significance, requirements, and representative models of the profit-sharing system operated by JDC. I hope this system serves as a strong foundation for mutual growth and co-prosperity between companies, ultimately strengthening the competitiveness of the entire business ecosystem.

Kim *Gyeong

I read the interviews with the two employees selected for their excellence in proactive administration with great interest. I applaud Senior Manager Yang Yun-ho and Assistant Manager Park Sin-ae for driving innovation based on their expertise. I deeply agreed with the sentiment that small ideas and actions gather to become a force for organizational change. I hope their efforts serve as a foundation for positive cultural shifts within the organization.
